Description

I am trying to load an application/rdf+xml resource using SaxonJS.getResource() yet I get text/html, because Saxon-JS sends an Accept: / header.

I think there should be an option to supply the Accept header.

Reopening, because the fix looks to be incomplete. SaxonJS.getResource calls platform.resourcePromise; in NodeJSPlatform this method processes headers if supplied, but not in BrowserPlatform.

The browser test iss4748 is actually testing the use of headers in ixsl:schedule-action/@http-request; which is a separate mechanism.

#6 - 2021-06-09 19:56 - Debbie Lockett

New test iss4748b added. Committed code changes to implement headers option for SaxonJS.getResource, for browser as well as Node platforms.

Also need to update the documentation.

Documentation now updated to include the new headers option for SaxonJS.getResource.

We should really have more tests for this new feature, and for testing SaxonJS.getResource in general. But I'm going to mark this as resolved anyway.
